

Exploring Collaborative Research Opportunities at the Intersection of Family, Gender and Social Change

A Workshop between National University of Singapore and the Vietnamese Academy of Social Sciences

26 Aug 2015 (Wed) | 3:30-5:00 pm | FASS Grad Studies Mtg Room AS7 06-03

Southeast Asia is experiencing remarkable social and demographic changes which have the potential to profoundly alter gender-based roles and resources within families and society; intergenerational relationships, support and caregiving; and family life course transitions into (and out of) marital and parental roles. Increasing levels of cross-border mobility in the region introduce additional, novel changes and challenges to family life in both migrant sending and receiving communities. Opportunities for innovative research at the intersection of family, gender and development are many. This research will likely be enriched by engaging collaborative, interdisciplinary and international teams of researchers.

Facilitator

A/P Kim Korinek, Visiting Senior Research Fellow, ARI & CFPR

Presenters

Dr. Hoa Dang Thi, Vice-Director
Institute for Family and Gender Studies

MA. Thuy Dang Bich, Head
Department of Children Studies

MA. Long Tran Quy, Deputy-head
Department of Children Studies

This will be an open forum workshop – all are welcome to attend and participate. Researchers interested in possible collaborative projects on family and gender in Vietnam are especially encouraged to attend.
