

Global Science 'Scapes: Dimensions of Transnationalism

21 April 2017 | Asia Research Institute, National University of Singapore

This one-day event is organised by the Leverhulme International Network on Global Science 'Scapes (<https://www.globalsciencespaces.org/>) and University College London, and hosted by the Science, Technology and Society cluster at the Asia Research Institute, NUS. The workshop will focus on how global labour markets and knowledge flows interact with patterns of international diplomacy and ideas about science, architecture and planning to create distinctive science landscapes around the world.

PROGRAM
09:45 – 10:00	REGISTRATION (light refreshments will be served)
10:00 – 10:10	INTRODUCTORY REMARKS
	Global Science Scapes: Dimensions of Transnationalism Dave Valler (Leverhulme Network co-ordinator) Oxford Brookes University, UK
10:10 – 12:30	PANEL 1
10:10	Science Vale Oxford as Ethnoscape Dave Valler Oxford Brookes University, UK
10:30	Transnational Science Spaces and Policy Transfer: Case Study of Sino-Singapore Science Parks Tian Miao University of Glasgow, Scotland
11:00	Singapore-based Science as Local/Global: Mobilizing Multi-Ethnicity in the Epidemiology of Eye Disease Catalijne Coopmans & Margaret Tan National University of Singapore
11:30	Science Policy Interface for the New Urban Agenda: Investigating the Global Urban Knowledge Architecture for the Implementation of the New Urban Agenda Enora Robin University College London, UK
12:00 – 13:00	LUNCH
13:00 – 14:30	PANEL 2
13:00	Tsukuba as Global Science Scape? Nicholas Phelps University College London, UK
13:30	Silicon Valley in the Trump Era Alice Chunyan Zhou International Triple Helix Institute, USA
14:00	Building a Magnetism for International Knowledge Migrants in Kennispark Twente, Netherlands Franziska Eckardt University of Twente, The Netherlands
14:30 – 15:00	TEA BREAK
15:00 – 16:00	PANEL 3
15:00	Blue Skies and White Clouds: Readiness in the Anthropocene Eric Kerr National University of Singapore Malini Sur Western Sydney University, Australia
15:30	On Singapore's Science Scape Philip Cho Yonsei University, Korea
16:00 – 16:15	CLOSING REMARKS
16:15	END OF WORKSHOP