Short Biography

Walker DePuy is a Postdoctoral Fellow in the Asian Urbanisms and Science, Technology, and Society (STS) Research Clusters at the Asia Research Institute (ARI). Walker's work centres on the politics of conservation in mosaic landscapes with an emphasis on environmental governance and justice. His geographical focal regions include Indonesia and Kenya. At ARI, he will continue an ongoing research programme with partners from Cornell University, Universitas Mulawarman, and local area communities to study Indonesia's relocation of its national capital from Jakarta to East Kalimantan through multi-sited ethnography, collaborative science, and Indigenous soundscapes.
